FIU introduces Delegated Access, a secure way to give student account access to another person

MIAMI (March 7, 2016) — FIU has created a safe way for students to share access to their student record or select information through a new delegated access program.

An FIU student can now give access to only the information they choose to a family member, friend, or a third party through their my.fiu.edu account. Delegated access allows parents or loved ones the ability to make a tuition payment, keep track of financial aid, view grades, and more.

Additionally, through delegated access a student can give a third party the authority to:

- Update emergency contacts
- View message board
- View account activity
- View class schedule
- View advising appointments
- View holds

Only pre-approved information by a student can be shared. FIU students can participate by logging into their my.fiu.edu account and clicking the “DELEGATE ACCESS” button.

FIU’s OneStop Enrollment Services has created an instructional video for students about the program at go.fiu.edu/davideo.
